

FLLCP

Willingness to 'roll up sleeves' amongst partners

Openness amongst partners

Chance to build relationships with members great to see work that's already happening starting small and developing into something bigger and seeing it through

Everyone is round the table great feedback on good practice

'today's attendance speaks for itself'

'if there's one group you don't miss it's this one'

Build's separate connections in addition to the full group

'Like a library of ideas that you gather at these meetings, and save until you need them, and know who to come to for more info at a later date'

'Get to know what people do and how it can work in the future'

speed networking event would be beneficial on an annual basis bacon rolls were good JJC open day the speed networking was the best thing. Really enjoyable, lots of connections, and a bit of time to build up relationships

Provided further engagement opportunities through established networks

'it has been invaluable' accessing networks I may not ordinarily get to work with

This has been an excellent exercise - a real reminder of the worth of this group.

'Strength of the LLCP in Fraserburgh works well'

Opportunity for new groups to be supported / guided breadth of type of group

Learning environment supported through the partnership connections

Led to strong engagement with communities

new groups coming together in response to C-19, giving these groups support ie helping them with funding applications for projects, or deal with issues or ideas/feedback on what they want to do, LLCP partners helping these new groups

The work around the JJC as a real centre of community was important while I was at the Foyer. In my new job at the college I think we are already looking at how to build links to help people affected by the pandemic.

The joy of the partnership is that there is always someone to help and there are places where we can help folk we are working with to progress to.

Training opportunities

its also a great way to connect on training and with bigger networking events and a great platform to share ongoing project work with the members for example the Summer Family kitchen project at North schoool, enjoyed sharing the powerpoint presentation and giving a progress update. Felt was very well recieved from partners at LLCP

Yes a strategy, mini-public that I wouldn't have known about so helps us build skills from the various activities we do

CPD

multi agency events shaped by partners meaningful for partners

tools shaped by partners

Social Capital mapping impact of LLCPs is shown connections = trust over time

Education Scotland used the practice exemplar as an example of good practice the social compass training made you think about all the connections we have made since we started in post
